

Prunus domestica 'Coe's Golden Drop'

COE'S GOLDEN DROP EUROPEAN PLUM

This European plum variety has a golden yellow skin and juicy yellow flesh. As a very sweet-tasting plum, it is considered one of the best dessert plums. A medium-growing tree, harvest time from late summer to early autumn. It is self-fertile but produces better yields when cross-pollinated with another European Plum such as 'Angelina' or 'President'.

It is a nice selection for eating fresh, for drying and for the making of preserves and jams.

Plant in a sunny position with well-drained and well-worked soil. Take care to plant the bud union above the soil level. Water in well and keep the soil moist until the tree is established. Fertilise when planting and again after new growth appears. Prune tree when planting to encourage new growth.
